Contents

Acknowledgements i
Contents iii
List of tables x
List of figures xiii
General abbreviations xiv
Symbols xv
Abbreviations of languages xvi

Chapter 1 Introduction 1
1.1. The position of Tocharian 1
1.2. Cladistics 5
1.2.1. Innovation, archaism and absence 6
1.2.2. The family tree model 11
1.2.3. Terminology 13
1.2.4. Quantitative methods and the position of Tocharian 15
1.2.5. The cladistic approach to reconstruction 17
1.2.6. Forward reconstruction as a heuristic device 18
1.3. Proposed isoglosses 20
1.3.1. Lexical isoglosses 20
1.3.2. Phonological isoglosses 29
1.3.3. Morphological isoglosses 30
1.4. Verbal isoglosses treated in this thesis 33
1.5. The Tocharian verb 37
1.5.1. Overview of Tocharian verbal stems 40

Chapter 2 The origin of the s-preterite 43
2.1. The Tocharian s-preterite 43
2.1.1. Tocharian stem patterns 45
2.1.2. Tocharian stem formation 48
2.1.3. The root subjunctive of class [1] 50
2.2. Diachronic explanations of the s-preterite 51
2.2.1. The syncretism hypothesis 52
2.2.2. An origin in the sigmatic aorist 53
2.2.3. The presigmatic aorist theory 54
2.2.4. Desinential -s* 57
2.3. Comparison of the s-preterite, the ḫi-preterite and the s-aorist 58
2.3.1. The h_2e*-endings in the preterite 59
2.3.2. The asigmatic 1sg. 60
2.3.3. The asigmatic 1pl. and 3pl. 61
2.3.4. 2sg. TB -sta, TA -ṣt, Hitt. -šta 63
2.3.5. 2pl. TB -sə, TA -s, Hitt. -šten 65
2.3.6. 3sg. TB -sa, TA -s, Hitt. -š 68
2.3.7. The middle suffix -sa-* 71
2.3.8. Ablaut 74
2.3.9. Function 78
2.3.10. Discussion 79
2.4. The root subjunctive [1] 82
2.5. Possible s-aorist relics 89
2.5.1. TB tes-, TA cas- 'put' 90
2.5.2. TA kñas- 'know' 93
2.5.3. e-grade presents: TB klyews-, TA klyaws- 'hear' and TB mens- 'be sad' 99

2.6. Excursus on the root aorist in Tocharian 101
2.7. Chapter conclusions 104

Chapter 3 The simple thematic present 107
3.1. The paucity of simple thematic presents 107
3.1.1. Data collection 110
3.2. Stem cognates with Tocharian simple thematic presents 111
3.2.1. *$b^{h}er$-, *$h_2e\acute{g}$-, and *$g^{w}\underset{\wedge}{\text{i}}eh_3\underset{\cup}{\text{u}}$- 111
3.2.2. *leg^{h}- 'lie down' 113
3.2.3. *$\acute{k}le\underset{\wedge}{\text{i}}$- 'lean' 114
3.3. Root cognates with Tocharian root presents 116
3.3.1. *h_1leng^{wh}- 'move (easily)' 117
3.3.2. *nes- 'escape, return (home)' 118
3.3.3. *$le\acute{g}$- 'gather' 120
3.4. Root cognates with Tocharian e-presents and o-presents 121
3.4.1. *der- 'tear, rip (apart)' 122
3.4.2. *$me\underset{\wedge}{\text{i}}th_2$- 'exchange, remove' 124
3.4.3. *$\underset{\wedge}{\text{u}}e\underset{\wedge}{\text{i}}g$- 'move away (from)' 126
3.4.4. *$dem(h_2)$- 'build, grow' 129
3.4.5. *$b^{h}e\underset{\wedge}{\text{u}}d^{h}$- 'be aware of' 132
3.5. Root cognates with Tocharian nasal presents 133
3.5.1. *$\underset{\wedge}{\text{u}}ert$- 'turn' 133
3.5.2. *sek^{w}- 'follow' 134
3.6. Root cognates with Tocharian s- and sk-presents 135
3.6.1. *$ple\underset{\wedge}{\text{u}}$- 'float, swim' 137
3.6.2. *$\underset{\wedge}{\text{u}}e\acute{g}^{h}$- 'drive (itr.)' 139
3.7. Tocharian s-presents with inchoative-causative alternation 139

3.7.1. Other verbs with voice opposition 142
3.7.2. The origin of the voice alternation 148
3.7.3. Conclusions 153
3.8. The elimination of simple thematic presents 154
3.9. Chapter conclusions 155

Chapter 4 Archaisms in s-transitives and intransitives 157
4.1. The goal of this chapter 157
4.1.1. Inchoative-causative alternation in Tocharian 159
4.1.2. Structure of the chapter 162
4.2. The e-subjunctive of class [3] 162
4.2.1. Oppositional causative subjunctives: root sbj.[1], 'ə/e-sbj.[2] and sk-sbj.[9] 165
4.2.2. The origin of e-sbj.[3] 172
4.3. The root preterite class [0] 179
4.3.1. The Tocharian A preterite of class [0] 179
4.3.2. The Tocharian B e-grade s-preterite middle 182
4.3.3. Oppositional causative preterites: s-prt.[3], caus. prt.[2] and [4] 183
4.3.4. The preterite participle 190
4.3.5. The origin of prt.[0] 196
4.4. The origin of the e-sbj.[3] – root prt.[0] stem pattern 207
4.4.1. Stems inherited from Indo-European 207
4.4.2. Coalescence 214
4.4.3. The development of [B]kən-, [A]kän- 'occur' and [B]təm-, [A]täm- 'be born' 218
4.4.4. Conclusions 221
4.5. The competing subjunctives theory 222
4.5.1. The s-transitive pattern with a thematic 'ə/e-sbj.[2] 224

4.5.2. Verbs with ambiguous subjunctives 227
4.5.3. Discrepancies in Tocharian A 228
4.5.4. The s-transitive pattern with a root sbj.[1] 229
4.5.5. Consequences for the competing subjunctives theory 235
4.6. The distribution of stem patterns 236
4.6.1. The productivity of [8 – 1 – 3] and [8 – 2 – 3] 237
4.6.2. The stem pattern of ləwk*- 240
4.6.3. Productivity of the e-sbj.[3] and the root prt.[0] 242
4.7. Chapter conclusions 244

Chapter 5 The Indo-European nt*-participle 247
5.1. Indo-European participles in Tocharian 247
5.1.1. Oriented and relative participles 249
5.1.2. Nominal verb forms in Tocharian 250
5.2. Tocharian verbal nouns in -NC- and related suffixes 252
5.2.1. Tocharian B -ñca 253
5.2.2. Tocharian B -nta 258
5.2.3. Tocharian B -ntsa 261
5.2.4. Possible related words in TB -(n)tsa, TA -(n)ts 266
5.2.5. Tocharian B -ca 271
5.2.6. Tocharian B -uki 276
5.2.7. Tocharian A -nt 279
5.2.8. The m-participle 284
5.3. Correlation with voice 289
5.3.1. Inchoative-causative opposition 291
5.3.2. Active-passive opposition 296
5.3.3. Other oppositional verbs 300

5.3.4. Summary 305
5.4. The development of the NC-formations 305
5.4.1. A joint origin 306
5.4.2. The development of TB -ntsa, TA *-nts 311
5.4.3. Early developments of the masculine 314
5.4.4. The inflection of the agent formations 318
5.4.5. Athematic NC-forms 321
5.4.6. Tocharian A -nt 326
5.4.7. The development of TB -nta and -ñca 327
5.4.8. [B]-ca and [B]-uki 330
5.4.9. The development of the m-participle 331
5.5. Chapter conclusions 332

Chapter 6 The thematic optative 335
6.1. The thematic optative in Tocharian 335
6.2. The Indo-European optative 338
6.3. The Tocharian optative 341
6.3.1. Optatives to thematic subjunctives 343
6.3.2. Athematic optatives to the root sbj.[1] and the e-sbj.[3] 346
6.4. The Tocharian imperfect 347
6.4.1. The imperfects to [B]nes-, [A]nas- 'be' and [B]y-, [A]y- 'go' 349
6.4.2. The Proto-Tocharian category "imperfect" 353
6.5. The inherited optative to thematic stems 356
6.5.1. Optatives and imperfects to simple thematic presents 357
6.5.2. Optatives to ske/o*-presents 359
6.5.3. The ablaut of -i̯eh$_1$/ih$_1$-* 360
6.5.4. Possible phonological outcomes of -oih$_1$-* 362

6.5.5. Deletion of the stem-final vowel 363
6.5.6. Reflections on the thematic optative as an isogloss 366
6.6. Optatives to a-final stems: TB -oy- and TA -äy- 367
6.6.1. Expected phonological developments 369
6.6.2. Non-palatalising -əy-* in the Tocharian B imperfect 373
6.7. Chapter conclusions 375

Chapter 7 Conclusions 379
7.1. Cladistic results 380
7.2. Results in Tocharian historical morphology 385
7.3. Reflections on the position of Tocharian 387

Bibliography 391
Bibliographic abbreviations 391
References 391

Samenvatting 426

Curriculum vitae 428